I have a T/C Cherokee 45 caliber 1:48 twist and decided to see how maxi balls shoot.. Do I need to put anything between the powder and the ball when I load to get a good seal? By the way, I ...

Noticed it right away. If you are paying attention to the loading process and have shot any percussion revolver enough times, you can see what level your needed powder volume is in the ...

I got my loading data from my Lyman's manual and experiences on the net. I use 80gr powder & shot in my Pedersoli shotgun (I have no Pietta shotgun but actual limits must be similar). I ...

If loading conicals, do as Zonie said and top off your BP with corn meal to within 3/8" of the rim. If loading balls, try adding loose corn meal all the way to the top -- corn meal will compress quite ...

I'm not sure why this wouldn't be a sticky at the top of every regional forum, but I think it would be a very useful posting for all members, & especially new members that are looking for ...

The noun version of loading can be the abstract as commented above, but because it tends to refer to a process rather than an event, it is also natural and common to use it in referring to ...

Muzzleloading Forum discussion community & muzzleloading/reenactors for sale classifieds. Muzzle loading forums for reenactors, mountain men, French & Indian War ...

The discussion of Traditional Percussion Rifles. We just launched USASporting - a nationwide network of pro-2nd Amendment forums for every state! We need your help to kickstart ...

The loading, ideally, should be the thickness of your ball diameter. Does not need to be perzact. I have made many ball blocks. Having a planer at home does help. I can plane down a ...
